

All the Year Five pupils at The Hawthorns were given a chance to take part in a National Science competition! The lucky few were then chosen to go through to an area heat where they had to demonstrate their scientific knowledge by answering questions such as “What is a one-humped camel called?”! By the end of the quiz, the team were very proud of themselves as they managed to win second prize!

(left to right) Emily Cull, Alexander Shalless, Katia Colligon and Thomas Boyd